Description

Introduces students to multicultural American Literature from the end of the Civil War in 1865 to the present, focusing on the evolution of literary traditions, genres, cultural voices, and ecological landscapes within historical, philosophical, social, political, and aesthetic contexts. Special emphasis on the role of diverse writers in redefining the nature of American literature from the late nineteenth century through the 21st century, and thereby reshaping American national identity as the United States becomes a global superpower.

Course Objectives

The student will be able to:

- demonstrate knowledge of major writers, key texts, documents, and debates of American literature from 1865 to the present by analyzing the development of America's political and aesthetic culture as reflected in the major writers and texts of this period.
- identify major literary genres, and trace the development of literary forms during this period.
- apply relevant critical and theoretical frameworks to evaluate the literature within historical, multicultural, and philosophical contexts.
- demonstrate orally and in college-level writing an analytical understanding of the literary texts.
- demonstrate appropriate formatting and documentation.
